CYPRUS

The Emerald of the Mediterranean

Cyprus: The Golden-Green Leaf of the Mediterranean

Cyprus is a beautiful island country located in the Eastern Mediterranean. It is the third largest and third most populous island in the Mediterranean Sea.

It is an independent republic since 1960 after being for almost 100 years a British colony.

The island is divided into six districts, with Nicosia being its capital and largest city.

Cyprus has been a member of the European Union since 2004

Cyprus uses the Euro as its official currency.

The Myth of Aphrodite

According to Greek mythology, Cyprus is the birthplace of the goddess Aphrodite. The myth links Cyprus with the concepts of beauty, love, and fertility.

Current Population

Approximately 1,3 million inhabitants (the whole island).

The Flag of Cyprus

The flag is unique, as it features a map of the island. The island is colored copper-orange, referring to Cyprus's rich mineral wealth (Cuprum is the Latin name for copper). Two green olive branches under the map symbolize the hope for peace between the two main communities (Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots).

Cyprus: a divided island

Cyprus is divided, due to the Turkish invasion on the 20th of July 1974. The Turkish troops invaded and occupied the 37% of the island. Since then, the northern part of our country is under Turkish occupation.

The Divided Capital: Nicosia

Nicosia is the last divided capital of Europe. The city is split by the "Green Line" into a southern (free) and a northern (occupied) part.
